When I designed the dishes webpage, I used the Javascript method. The dishes webpage mainly shows the dishes from each restaurant. When you click on the title of the restaurant, it will show you the menu of this restaurant. The webpage will clearly show the name of the dish and the ingredients. Different font-family and front-size were used for the name of dishes and ingredients.

The Prices webpage introduces the six restaurants divided into three levels which are cheap-eat mid-range and fine-dining. In this webpage, I use jQuery method. When the mouse moves over the words, the color of the words will be lighter. When the mouse leaves the words, the words will change back to their original form. When you click on the words, the webpage will show you images and introductions.

Contact and About webpage provide contact information email addresses and opening hours for each restaurant. In this webpage, I use jQuery method as well. When the mouse moves over the image, the color of the image will become lighter and return to its original color after leaving. Clicking on the image will show information about the restaurant.

This assignment is generally well done, but there are parts which are not perfect. In the future design, I will force on the detail of the webpage.
